Trends in Talent Compensation in the Film and Television Industry

Panelists from all sides of the negotiating table, including reps from an independent studio, a streamer, a talent agency, and a talent attorney, will share trends in talent compensation structures and explore the challenges and opportunities for production and distribution companies as well as for talent in today's business environment. Our speakers will also discuss their views on how the evolving film and television industry will impact compensation packages in the foreseeable future.

M&A Activity in the Production Company Space

With a record $233 billion in announced deal value last year, the entertainment industry has been consolidating at a blistering pace. Recent robust M&A activity around production companies, in particular, driven by strong interest from private equity and strategic buyers, is the focus of our panel of experts as they examine key issues from the perspectives of the production company, buyer, and financial advisors. Our speakers will discuss latest trends and developments in company valuation, diligence, and the retention of high-profile individuals, among other topics.

Privacy Challenges & Pitfalls in the Entertainment Industry

The entertainment industry is rife with potential privacy risks when dealing with consumer and employee personal information. California has passed several new laws, including the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) and the California Privacy Rights Act (CPRA), which goes into effect on 1/1/23. These and other state and foreign laws substantially alter risk for media and entertainment companies and give consumers, talent, employees, contractors, and other vendors rights around their data. This panel will provide an overview of privacy, the CCPA and CPRA and provide guidance on how privacy issues impact counseling clients on such things as casting, COVID testing and vaccines, launching a marketing website, and tracking diversity metrics.
Production Incentives: Where Are They and How Do We Access Them

Experienced panelists will explore tax subsidies, credits, and other production incentives available to film and television producers. The panel will also address accessing incentives, working with local production service companies, what producers and studios look for and problems collecting incentives from foreign governments.

The Ethics Factor: Entertainment Malpractice and State Bar Issues

Learn how to avoid State Bar complaints and what to do if it comes calling. Panelists will cover the latest developments in fee agreements and malpractice claims and defenses, with an emphasis on entertainment law.
